Speaking to Ships at Sea.

The French Government has decided to make use of Professor Marconi's system of wireless telegraphy for naval and coast defence purposes. Experiments have shown that a vessel can communicate with the shore when wixty miles distant, but that unless the height of the masts be increased this will be the maximum distance. The employment of balloons in the English Navy will, however, enable our ships to communicate at distances considerably

Lord Rosslyn, who sent to the Daily Mail the good news about Pretoria, has in his life played many parts. The most diverting to his friends, declares 'M.A.P.,' was when he edited Scot tish Life, in London. Then he used to go to Hyde Park immoculately clad, in the height of the season, each day about noon. Seated under a tree and smoking a succession of cigarettes in an exceptionally long jewelled holder, he would estentatiously correct proufs.

Gladness Comes A /ith a better understanding of the

VV transient nature of the many physiical ills, which vanish before proper efforts—gentle efforts—pleasant efforts— rightly directed. There is comfort in the knowledge, that so many forms of sickness are not due to any netual disease, but simply to a constipated condition of the system, which the pleasant family laxative, Syrup of Figs, promptly removes. That is why it is the only remedy with millions of families, and is everywhere esteemed so highly by all who value good health. Ita beneficial effects are due to the fact, that it is the one remedy which promotes internal cleanliness without debilitating the organs on which it acts. It is therefore all important, in order to get its beneficial effects, to note when you purchase, that you have the genuine article, which is manufactured by the California Fig Syrep Co, only and sold by all reputable druggists.
If in the enjoyment of good health, and the system is regular laratives or other remedies are than not needed. If afflicted with any actual disease, one may be commended to the most skillful; physicial s, but if in need of a laxative, one aboutd have the best, and with the well-informed everywhere, Byrup of Figs stands highest and is most largely used and gives most general satisfaction.

Knowing as we do the habits of the Chinese in these matters, it is so easy and natural to reconstruct the series of ucis which would help to bring about this unfortunate attitude of mind against the European; would become the scapegeat for the sins of the crafty middlenien of the transaction. But we can go one step further, and yet, we think, romain on a firm footing. Railways themselves are feared and hated on many grounds. It will be remembered that in one of George Eliot's novels, the author vividly delingates a sudden tumult in England when railways were being first introduced, though it was speedily and easily dissipated. In China this fear and hatred of railways spring from several causes. It is well known that one of the most cherished faiths of the Chinese. seems to know quite what this poculiar force is, and therefore, as the unknown is always more dreaded than the known, this mysterious power holds the people in its relentless grip, and they are afraid. A belief in it is breathed in with the air. absorbed with the light, its existence inculcated upon the child in looks committed to memory in early years, is made vivid by the stories which village elders repeat to their grandchildren; is insisted on by a whole aimy of geomancers and necromancers, of wizurds and witches. believe, in fact, that the Chinese are firmer prefer to incur the risk of the gods digapproval rather than interfere with Reng Now this Feng Shui, like many people not quite so omnipotent, does not like to be interfered with by anyone, least of all does it brook interference at the hand of Europeans. The disadvantages of railways, according to fierce entagonism against all those nations popular conception, do not confine themsolves to the irritation of the goddess Feng. Shiri. It may be admitted that they are at first, very tangible to the experiences of many people, who suffer and cannot avoid it. The man who trundles his antedituvian wheelbarrow, on one side of which sits the happy lileveti, and on the other rests a basket of garlie, sees that he will lose his means of livelihood, and will not have wherewith to satisfy the primitive needs of those dependent on him. The boatman, too, who carns a daily aufliciency of cash to keep body and soul together, sees even this little vanishing from his reach, as he contemplates the wonderful capacities of this new means of conveyance. Just as, in fact, years ago, the men who manned the alipper boats that ply between Canton and Fatshau, rose and smashed the steam launches which attempted to interfere with their trade, and at the time and for many yours, were able effectively to prevent the introduction of launches, so the people of the north rese at the introduction of vailways, and only needed some occasion to destroy both them and their constructors. Nor must we forget that rumours would reach the people that Russia, by means her railways; had been able to mobilize large numbers of soldiers into Chineso territory, and the people needed no morbid imagination to foresee a repetition of the same thing within the sacred boundaries of the Eighteen Provinces themselves. When it is asked, why missionaries are, in some cases, exposed to the same, hatred, and murdered in the same ruthless way, some roply, that the old Latin phrase odium theologicum will furnish a sufficient answer. The preachers of Christianity are sometimes charged with want of tact; they are condemned because they show zoal without knowledge, and ride roughshed over the religious scusibilities of the people. Whatever truth there may be in those strictures, -and it must be admitted that in many cases, those who make them have not verified them by personal observation, we venture to think that the hatred of missionaries, where it exists, on the part of the Chinese, has its origin in another root, and is supported by other reasons. Mis sionaries are regarded, by the Chinese, as political agents. They are like runners before the Viceroy's chair, who go forth to inspect the path, and clear the way for His Excellency. They are sent forth by their respective Governments to spy out the land. They are pionicars of the aggressive party which will cortainly follow. That this is not so, on the part of the majority of Missionaries, most Europeans know full well. - But the Chinese do not possess this knowledge. That mon should leave home and friends and settle in the interior China, in the interests of an alien race, to promulgates set of ideas, to teach the worship of a different god, can no more be understood by the Chinese, than a Chinese villager can conceive of the structure and dimensions of the steamer Oceanic. Buddhism, Mohammedanism and Christianity have had their missionarios. But Confucianism has none. To her the idea is supremely absurd. More over, history gives some colour to the illusion that missionaries are political agents. When they are killed, Germany steps in and demands a bay as compensation. When they are butchered, consuls and missionaries sit on the same bench, and appear to share the responsibility of massing condemnation. All this seems to support the Chinese view of the question. The Chinese are unable to understand that any motive

The Knife in Ship Street.

There must have been much bloodshed in Ship Street last night, judging from the many yards of lint which swathed the heads and bodies of four Malays, who appeared before Mr Hazeland this morning One of the prisoners was charged with stabbing a Chinaman, but, owing to the condition of the injured man, the case was remanded. The three others were charged with creating a disturbance and being in possession of arms without a permit. One of the prisoners was in such weak state that he had to be accommodated with a seat and be provided with water. One of his eyes was completely closed up and his head and shoulders were covered with bandages. There was no mistaking his having been through the wars. The evidence was to the effect that these men, at 9.30 last night, were rushing about brandishing duggers among a great crowd of Chinese in the neighbourhood of Ship Street. The Chinese were heaving bricks at them, and the noise was such as to disturb the people in the neighbourhood. Inspector Cotton rushed out of his house in his sleeping suit and, along with a soldier, succeeded in disarming one of the prisoners and taking him to the Police Station: The others were taken by Chinese constables. The story of the prisoners was that they visited a certain house in Ship Street and, when they came out half an hour afterwards, they were surrounded by a mob of Chinese who threw bricks and stones at them in a most unmerciful manner, knocking them down and wounding them. They were unemployed seamen and lived in the Malay boarding hopee. Mr Hazeland said he was quite satisfied that the real cause of this quarrel was due solely to the fact that in Ship Street there were houses for Europeans and Chinese. It was a very serious state of affairs and a row like last night's might occur any night. Every one of these houses should be closed or, if not closed they should separate the Europeans from the Chinese. The defendants had no business to use knives. He had known Malays for years and it was their custom to go about with daggers, but they must be taught not to use them on people in British Colony. The keeper of the boarding house agreed to become surefy in 825 for Tesch prisoner for their good behaviour during the next six months. His Worship thought that by forfaiting the

The message says that General Time Fuhsiangs, in command of the Imperial troops, was so ouraged at the desperate defence of the British Legation that he ordered the heavy guns to open fire on the buildings, with the result that the Legation was set on fire and completely destroyed. The message avoids a ghastly conclusion by simply saying that ten thousand new difficulties will arise for China by this act. I believe Shong and Yuan Shi Kui knew

CURE FOR CHOLERA INFANTUM-KNOWN TO FAIL

DURING last May an infant child of our neighbor was suffering from cholors infantum. The doctors had given up all hopes of recovery. I took a bottle of Chamberlan's Colic, Cholora and Diarthree Remedy to the house, telling them I felt sure it would do good if used according (URB and bruises are healed by Cham to directions. In two days time the child U berlain's Pain Balm in about one had fully recovered. The child is now third the time any other treatment would vigorous and healthy. I have recommendrequire because of its antisoptic qualities od this remedy frequently and have never which cause the parts to heal without known it to fail. Mrs. Cours Birer.

A ONE-TIME order, like one blow of the 4 p.m. hammer on the head of the nail, makes an impression, but it is only the contimous insertion of the advertisament like the continuous pounding on the head of the nail, that drives the argument home and clinches it.
